INTRODUCTORY

The compiler of this little book takes great pleasure in presenting to the public this, his fourth effort in the directory line in Hartford City. He also ventures to hope that the patrons of the directory will gaze with an indulgent eye on the unavoidable errors and trusts that they will commend those features which tend to make it valuable as a reference to the people of Hartford City. Since the publication of the 1902-'03 directory Hartford City has taken several important strides in the way of public improvements which deserve more than a passing mention. The interurban railway system which makes rapid and convenient transit possible between Hartford City and the cities on the line between Muncie and Bluffton has proved to be of untold value to our enterprising city. An army of workmen are now engaged in the task of transforming that erstwhile eyesore, the muddy block streets, into a beautiful expanse of brick pavement, which, when completed, will be the pride of the city and will add many thousands of dollars to the value of residence and business property. The handsome public library erected on North High Street is another step on the ladder of advancement and the magnificent new school buildings now being erected on the site of the structure lately destroyed by fire is another monument to the spirit of enterprise which inspires the greater number of our public spirited citizens. The formation of a Commercial Club composed of the representative citizens of Hartford City and the manner in which they put their shoulders to the wheel and inaugurated an active campaign looking to the betterment of trade conditions in Hartford City is undoubtedly the nest egg of prosperity and unless all signs fail there will be no such word as "hard times" in Hartford City during the next two years. In point of population the city has made a substantial gain in the past two years. A careful estimate, based on the number of names contained in this book, indicates that Hartford City has a population of about 9,000. In conclusion I desire to thank those who lent their assistance in the compilation of this book and the business men whose liberal patronage made the venture successful from a financial standpoint.

Respectfully,
THE PUBLISHER.

JAMES A. ROSCOE

THE LEADING MERCHANT TAILOR

Makes stylish clothes to suit the most fastidious at prices that are reasonable.

A SUIT THAT FITS

Made by experienced tailors will give you more satisfaction than a dozen ill-made, ill-fitting suits. Our garments are made to look well and are guaranteed to fit you perfectly.

Give me a trial order and test the truth of this assertion.

THE TIMES

Daily and Weekly

Is the recognized Republican newspaper of Hartford City and Blackford County. Over 800 subscribers were added to the large list during the famous rooster guessing contest, which gives The Times by far the largest bonafide circulation of any paper published in Blackford County.

The daily will be delivered by carrier in the city for 10 cents a week or sent on the rural routes in the county for 25 cents a month. The weekly edition is $1.00 per year sent anywhere in this country. If you will read The Times a few weeks you will want no other local paper.

A Splendidly Equipped Job Plant

In connection and all kinds of job business respectfully solicited. Good material, first-class workmanship and low prices combine to make the job department popular.
